Funeral Planning Guide

What you need to know
Introduction

Throughout your life, you’ve been a source of emotional, physical and financial support for your family members and friends. With our Funeral Planning Guide, you can help support your loved ones at a time when they need it most. By documenting your funeral preferences, as well as other key information for your survivors, you can provide support posthumously — a final act of love.

Grieving family members and friends may be confronted with dozens of funeral planning decisions — all of which typically must be made quickly and under great emotional duress. What kind of funeral should it be? What funeral provider should you use? Should you bury or cremate the body? What other arrangements should you plan? Whom should you notify? And, as unpleasant as it may sound, how much is it all going to cost, and where will the money come from to pay for it? Knowing and following your wishes can alleviate the decision-making stress and allow your loved ones to focus on their emotional needs and on other family matters which may arise during difficult times. Following the funeral, your financial affairs will need to be finalized, and the information you provide for your loved ones will be invaluable in completing this task.

This Funeral Planning Guide provides an easy-to-use format for documenting information your loved ones will need after your death:

• The “My Personal Information” section allows you to record details your family will need for official records but that, in their grief, they may not be able to recall.

• The “My Funeral Plans” section makes it simple to detail your wishes regarding your funeral. Should you not wish to plan your own funeral, your loved ones can use this information to do it for you.

• The “My Important Contacts and Information” section provides a place for you to record key information your loved ones may need following your death, such as insurance and financial information.

The Guide also provides you and/or your loved ones with information on funeral planning and on estate settlement, as well as descriptions of MetLife benefits that may be available to you or your beneficiaries, and a list of additional resources you may need.

Once you have completed the Funeral Planning Guide, it can be saved to your computer. As a backup, we recommend printing it out to keep with your other important papers. You may want to use the guide to initiate conversations with your family about other end-of-life issues, as well. In any event, be sure to let your family know where this information can be found, should they need it.*

B. Insurance Information

In today’s busy life, it’s difficult to remember the details. And even though you may have told your family about details like your medical insurance or where you’ve worked, chances are they don’t remember. Help simplify matters for your family by providing the pertinent details they may need to submit claims or ask about survivor benefits.

IV. Funeral Planning Information

Planning a funeral means different things to different people. Some people prepay for their funeral arrangements in advance, while others may simply preplan. When a loved one passes away without making specific funeral arrangements, survivors should try to locate any written instructions that can help them navigate through the process, while fulfilling the final requests of the deceased.

A. Prepaying

Millions of Americans have contracted with funeral service providers to pre-arrange their funerals and prepay a portion or all of the expenses involved. Individual state laws regulate the pre-payment of funeral goods and services; these protections may vary widely from state to state. Some state laws require funeral homes or cemeteries to place a percentage of the prepayment in a state-regulated trust, or to purchase a life insurance policy with the death benefits assigned to the funeral home or cemetery. However, some state laws offer little or no effective protection.

If you do decide to prepay, make sure you understand exactly what’s included in the price. Are you buying only merchandise, like a casket, or are you purchasing the whole funeral package? Some additional questions to ask yourself if you are considering prepayment are:

• Are you protected if the company you’ve contracted with closes its doors, becomes insolvent or otherwise goes out of business?
• What happens to the money you’ve prepaid? What are your state’s requirements?
• What happens if you relocate, retire to a new state or die while away from home? Some prepaid funeral plans can be transferred at an added cost.
• Can you make changes to the plan, or even cancel the contract and get a refund, if you change your mind?
• What happens to the interest income on money that is prepaid (if money is placed into a fund)?

B. Preplanning

Preplanning does not involve any contractual or monetary obligations. It simply means that you make decisions about your final arrangements during your lifetime. To help ensure that your wishes can be carried out after your death, it’s important to document them, and to let your family members know where that documentation can be found.

C. The Funeral Rule

Most funeral providers are kind, caring professionals, who work hard to serve their clients’ needs and best interests. In order to ensure this same treatment for everyone, there is a federal law that makes it easier for you to choose only those goods and services you want or need, and also to pay only for those you select, whether you are planning for yourself in advance or at the time of a loved one’s death.

The Federal law, known as the Funeral Rule 16 CFR Part 453, is enforced by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC). It requires funeral directors to provide consumers with accurate, itemized price information and various disclosures regarding funeral goods and services. Itemized pricing must be provided to individuals in person and, if you ask, over the phone. For example, the funeral home must give you a written price list to keep that shows the goods and services the home offers. If you want to buy a casket or outer burial container, the funeral provider must show you descriptions of the available selections and the prices before actually showing you the caskets.
In addition, the FTC publication, “Shopping for Funeral Services” states that under the Funeral Rule:

• You have the right to choose the funeral goods and services you want (with some exceptions).
• The funeral provider must state prices in writing on the general price list.
• If state or local law requires you to buy any particular item, the funeral provider must disclose it on the price list, with a reference to the specific law.
• The funeral provider may not refuse, or charge a fee, to handle a casket you bought elsewhere.
• A funeral provider that offers cremations must make alternative containers available.

D. Types of Funerals

Funeral practices are influenced by religious and cultural traditions, costs and personal preferences. These factors help determine whether the funeral will be elaborate or simple, public or private, religious or secular, and where it will be held. The information below describes common types of services.

1. Traditional or Full-Service Funeral
   This is the most common type of funeral service and is generally the most expensive. It usually includes a viewing or visitation, a formal service at a funeral home or place of worship officiated by a cleric or other official, use of a hearse to transport the body to the funeral site and cemetery, and burial, entombment or cremation of the remains. There may be additional costs to be factored in, such as embalming and dressing the body, vehicles to transport the family if they don’t use their own, a casket, cemetery plot or crypt, and for other funeral goods and services.

2. Direct Burial
   The body is buried shortly after death, usually in a simple container. No viewing or visitation is involved, so no embalming is necessary. A memorial service may be held at the graveside or later. Direct burial usually costs less than the “traditional,” full-service funeral.

3. Direct Cremation
   The body is cremated shortly after death, without embalming. The cremated remains are placed in an urn or other container. No viewing or visitation is involved, although a memorial service may be held, with or without the cremated remains present. The remains can be kept in the home buried in a cemetery or buried/scattered in a favorite spot (check local, state and federal laws). Direct cremation usually costs less than the full-service funeral.

E. Funeral Costs

Planning a funeral can be emotionally and financially draining. Although nothing can alleviate the emotional strain, it is possible to minimize the financial drain. The costs associated with a funeral can vary widely, depending on the funeral provider, and the funeral goods and services chosen. As a consumer, it’s important to request a price list so you can determine which funeral goods and services you wish to include, and resist the urge to spend more than you want, or can afford.

Many funeral providers offer various “packages” of commonly selected goods and services that make up a funeral. However, when you arrange for a funeral, you have the right to buy only the individual goods and services you want, and you don’t have to accept a package that includes items you do not want.
1. Commonly Included Costs

- Basic services fee for the funeral director and staff — Basic service fees include services that are common to all funerals, regardless of the specific arrangement. These include funeral planning, securing the necessary permits and copies of death certificates, preparing the notices, sheltering the remains, and coordinating the arrangements with the cemetery, crematory or other third parties.

- Charges for other services and merchandise — These are costs for optional goods and services such as transporting the remains, embalming and other preparation, use of the funeral home for the viewing, ceremony or memorial service, use of equipment and staff for a graveside service, use of a hearse or limousine, a casket, outer burial container or alternate container, and cremation or interment.

- Cash advances — Some funeral homes charge extra for goods and services bought from outside vendors on your behalf, including flowers, obituary notices, pallbearers, officiating clergy and organists and soloists. Some funeral providers add a service fee to their cost. The Funeral Rule requires those who charge an extra fee to disclose that fact in writing, although it doesn’t require them to specify the amount of their markup.

2. Calculating the Actual Cost

The funeral provider must give you an itemized statement of the total cost of the funeral goods and services you have selected when you are making the arrangements. If the funeral provider doesn’t know the cost of the cash advance items at the time, he or she is required to give you a written “good faith estimate.” This statement also must disclose any legal, cemetery or crematory requirements that any specific funeral goods or services be purchased.

3. “Funeral Provider Cost Comparison” Form

You may want to use the below “Funeral Provider Cost Comparison” form to gather information about the costs associated with commonly used funeral goods and services in your area.

F. Paying for the Funeral

Most funeral providers do not offer a deferred payment plan for funeral expenses, because trying to collect at a later date may be difficult, time consuming and costly. Unless it has been pre-paid, payment must typically be made when services are rendered. Cash, credit cards, life insurance proceeds and loans are the most commonly used methods of payment.

Life Insurance

Many people purchase life insurance coverage to help provide financial security for their loved ones when they die, and to cover final expenses. When life insurance proceeds are used to pay funeral costs, the Beneficiary can “assign” a portion of the insurance proceeds to the funeral provider. Paperwork is typically handled by the funeral provider, who will have the Beneficiary sign an “Assignment” form authorizing the insurance company to pay the funeral provider a specific amount of the insurance proceeds (equal to the funeral costs) before paying the Beneficiary.

G. Funeral Terms and Tips

Caskets

A casket often is the single most expensive item you’ll buy if you plan a full-service funeral. Caskets vary widely in style and price, and are sold primarily for their visual appeal.

Cemeteries — Private

When you are purchasing a cemetery plot, consider the location of the cemetery. Other important points you may want to consider include the type of monuments or memorials the site allows, and whether flowers or other remembrances may be placed on graves. Cost is another consideration. Cemetery plots can be expensive, especially in metropolitan areas, and there may be charges for opening and closing the grave. Most, but not all, cemeteries require you to purchase a grave liner, which will cost several hundred dollars.

Cemeteries — Veterans

Burial benefits for veterans include a gravesite in a national cemetery, opening and closing the grave, perpetual care, a headstone or marker, a burial flag, and a Presidential Memorial Certificate, at no cost to the family. Cremated remains are buried or interred in national cemeteries in the same manner and with the same honors as casketed remains. This eligibility also extends to some civilians who have provided military-related service, and some Public Health Service personnel.

Burial benefits may also be available for eligible spouses and dependents of veterans, even if they predecease the veteran. For more information, visit the Department of Veterans Affairs’ Web site at www.cem.va.gov. To reach the regional Veterans office in your area, call 1-800-827-1000.
Cremation
Many families who opt to have their loved ones cremated rent a casket from the funeral home for the visitation and funeral, eliminating the cost of buying a casket. If you opt for visitation and cremation, ask about the rental option. For those who choose a direct cremation, without a viewing or other ceremony where the body is present, the funeral provider must offer an inexpensive unfinished wood box or alternative container, a non-metal enclosure — pressboard, cardboard or canvas — that is cremated with the body.

Death Certificate
This is a legal document issued by a government official of the jurisdiction in which the death occurred, and typically includes the location, date and cause of death, as well as the deceased's identifying information (name, SSN, parents' names, marital status, etc.). It is required to finalize almost every aspect of a loved one's affairs, both now and in the future. In fact, in some states, the body can’t be moved without it. Later, it will be needed to start the probate process and to file any life insurance claims. It may be advisable to obtain more than one certified copy of the death certificate (a fee is charged for each copy requested) since only a certified copy may be acceptable for many purposes. Most funeral directors will obtain the certificate(s) for the family as part of their services.

Embalming
Many funeral homes require embalming if a viewing or visitation is planned, although embalming is generally not necessary or legally required if the body is buried or cremated shortly after death. Eliminating this service can save you hundreds of dollars.

V. Settling the Estate
After the death of a loved one, family members are often faced with the important task of finalizing the financial affairs of the deceased. At a time when people may be least prepared to deal with practical matters, the countless details, arrangements and planning can sometimes seem insurmountable and confusing. Depending on the size and type of estate, this can be a complex and expensive process.

The Executor of the estate is typically named in the will. An Executor has specific legal responsibilities, including probating and settling the deceased’s estate. These duties typically include collecting assets, settling debts, paying taxes and distributing the remainder to the heirs in accordance with the will.

If there is no will, and there are probate assets, the Probate Court will generally appoint an Administrator to handle the duties of collecting assets, settling debts and paying taxes. The remainder of the estate is typically distributed in accordance with the state’s intestate rules.

If you are the Executor or Administrator of an estate, and feel overwhelmed by the task, it is probably wise to consult a lawyer if you can afford it, or at least find a comprehensive reference book about your duties. Careful attention to financial matters can help a family deal with the future, and can help ensure that they receive all benefits to which they are entitled.
Some important suggestions:

- Contact the Social Security Administration (800-772-1213) regarding any benefits that the deceased may have been receiving, and any benefits for which loved ones may be eligible.

- If the deceased was receiving any pension benefits, contact the plan administrator(s).
  In some instances, the surviving spouse may be eligible to continue receiving all or part of the pension, either indefinitely or for a given period of time.

- Notify any insurance company with whom the deceased was insured. Ask for claim forms and instructions on how to file for life insurance proceeds. To help facilitate this process, an insurance company is likely to need the following information: a statement of claim, with the full name and address of the beneficiary or the person making the claim; a certified death certificate showing the date, place and cause of death; and the actual policy or certificate, if available. Many insurance companies will pay insurance proceeds into an interest-bearing account, giving the beneficiary time to make well thought-out decisions regarding the use of the money.

- Notify the deceased’s employer (or former employer). If the deceased was employed at time of death, there may be a final paycheck due. The employer can also provide information on any deferred compensation plans that apply to the deceased. Whether the deceased was currently employed, retired or on disability, you or other family members may be entitled to benefits.

- Contact the administrator(s) of any IRA, 401(k) and/or 403(b) plans in which the deceased participated. These types of plans typically include a beneficiary designation to facilitate payment.

- If the deceased was a Union member, contact the Union representative. Check on any Union benefits to which the deceased was entitled, as well as any benefits that may be available to the surviving spouse or minor children.

- If the deceased served in the uniformed services, notify the Department of Veterans Affairs. A burial allowance may be available, subject to certain qualifications, and his or her spouse and minor children may be eligible for certain benefits. For more information, visit the Department of Veterans Affairs’ Web site at www.cem.va.gov. To reach the regional Veterans office in your area, call 1-800-827-1000.

- Submit outstanding medical claims to the proper insurer.

- Notify financial institutions with whom the deceased had accounts.

- Notify creditors.

- Determine what taxes are due, and file tax returns.
VI. MetLife Benefits for You and Your Beneficiary(ies)

A. How do you know if you have enough life insurance to meet your family’s needs?

If you currently have life insurance coverage, it’s a good idea to review the policy/certificate every few years to make sure it still meets your needs. Check to make sure all beneficiaries and other information are current. Do any of the statements below pertain to you? If so, it might be time to review your insurance options.

If you...

• Were recently married or divorced
• Have a child or grandchild who was recently born or adopted
• Provide care or financial help to a child or parent
• Want to help ensure that financial resources are available to provide assistance or long term care for a loved one
• Purchased a new home recently
• Have children or grandchildren who are about to enter college
• Refinanced your home mortgage in the past six months
• Received an inheritance
• Retired or your spouse has retired
• Have started a business

How Much Life Insurance Do I Need?

If you are the family’s sole breadwinner, or part of a dual-income household, an adequate level of life insurance should be part of your financial plan. While no amount of money can take your place, the right amount of life insurance can go a long way in helping your family to replace lost income and maintain their standard of living. Life insurance coverage can help to defray the loss of income and help your family maintain the household.

Find out how much life insurance you may need by using the MetLife Life Insurance Calculator located at: www.metlifeiseasier.net

If you only have Basic life insurance, chances are good that your current coverage has not kept pace with your family’s changing needs. MetLife’s Supplemental Life program may be able to help fill that gap.

MetLife Provides More Than Just a Death Benefit

MetLife makes it easy to get the most out of your benefits with MetLife Advantages™, a comprehensive suite of services that may be available with your Group Life Insurance.
Services Available with Supplemental Life Plans

B. Estate Planning Services

• Locate Social Security and Veterans Affairs offices

F. MetLife Delivering The Promise® (DTP)

During a time of loss, MetLife has arranged for third party financial professionals to provide the beneficiaries of your employees dedicated support, upon request of a beneficiary or family member. They thoroughly understand the circumstances of beneficiaries and their families and have the special skills needed to work with them. Delivering the Promise Specialists are ready to provide assistance with:

• Completing and filing life insurance claims — including those from other companies
• Contacting Social Security or Veterans Administration, or other government agencies about benefits
• Locating local grief counseling and support resources

G. Total Control Account® (TCA)

In most states, the Total Control Account is the standard method used to pay death claims. Insurance proceeds are paid to the beneficiary via the TCA, which is an interest bearing account with draft writing privileges that provides full access to the insurance proceeds.

Bereavement can be a difficult, emotional and stressful time, and beneficiaries often feel overwhelmed by pressing decisions related to the loss of their loved ones. TCA death claim payments relieve beneficiaries of the need to make immediate decisions about what to do with a lump-sum check, and enable them to have the flexibility to access funds as needed, while earning a guaranteed minimum interest rate on the proceeds, as they assess their financial situation.
VII. The MetLife Death Claim Process

MetLife realizes beneficiaries are going through a difficult, emotional and potentially confusing time. To assist the beneficiaries, of our Group Life customers MetLife has created a website to file a Death Claim as an alternate option to the traditional paper process and a settlement option called the Total Control Account (TCA).

When the death is reported to the employer by a family member, attorney, funeral home or other source, the employer checks the employee’s records to ascertain whether a Group Life benefit may be payable. The Employer or third party that maintains the insured’s enrollment and beneficiary designation forms will report to MetLife if it is determined that a benefit may be payable. The employer will begin the process by completing the information on the Employer’s Statement, and will send the Claimant’s Statement to the latest designated beneficiary that is listed in their records.

The Employer Statement submitter will request that the beneficiary complete the Claimant’s Statement, and return it along with a certified death certificate. When the submitter receives the completed Claimant’s Statement and certified death certificate from the beneficiary, they review the documentation to make sure that it all is in order. This documentation is then forwarded to the MetLife Group Life unit along with the completed Employer’s Statement, enrollment and latest beneficiary designation form.

If the amount of proceeds payable to the beneficiary is $5,000 or more, a Total Control Account will usually be established in the beneficiary’s name once the claim is approved. The beneficiary will receive a personalized “draft book” and a kit that includes a Customer Agreement that provides additional information regarding the Total Control Account. By using one of the personalized drafts, the beneficiary can draw a draft on their Total Control Account for the entire amount at any time. Information regarding the other settlement options available will also be provided.

While a beneficiary’s death claim proceeds are in a Total Control Account, the proceeds are guaranteed by MetLife. The beneficiary can access all or part of the insurance proceeds at any time, simply by writing a draft (minimum $250). There is no charge for additional drafts, there are no transaction or monthly fees, and no penalties for withdrawing all or part of the funds in the TCA. All guarantees are subject to the financial strength and claims-paying ability of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, which has been delivering on its promises since 1868.

We hope that the Total Control Account will help beneficiaries rest a little easier knowing that their money is guaranteed, earning interest at rates that are set with reference to objective, third-party indices of money market rates, and accessible when needed, giving them time to make financial decisions that are right for them.
